Norman Baker

(HIMSELF)

"Hello Folks"

THE IOWA UNION FARMER in its issue of August 12th, has this to say: "Milo Reno has no apologies to make to Norman Baker or anyone else for the two or three conferences he has had with Governor Turner since the latter went into the governor's office some seven months ago. We believe we are safe in saying that 98 per cent of the membership of the Iowa Farmers Union supported Dan Turner openly and above board and voted for him. The rank and file of Farmers Union membership and their leaders have found no reason thus far to regret their support of Dan Turner."

The Farmers Union membership, however, would be interested in knowing why Norman Baker supported "Honest Jawn" Hammill and the "Super Engineer," Dr. Herbert Hoover."

No, he has no apologies to make to Norman Baker, but he surely has many to make to the members of "his" own farm association. He says that 98 per cent of his members are for Dan Turner, that they have no reason to be against him, that they do not regret their support for him—that the two or three conferences he, Reno, had with the Governor were O. K.—maybe so—maybe so—maybe lots was accomplished — BUT 1600 STATE TROOPS ARE IN TIPTON AGAINST UNION FARMERS. — That's that. — Now about my support for Gov. Hammill, it was because regardless of his faults, he was enough of a man to say: "I WON'T CALL THE TROOPS OUT AGAINST GOOD IOWA FARMERS" — that's that twice — now about Hoover — will anyone say he is not capable — will anyone say that he has not shown his ability in his private business before becoming President — NO INDEED NOT — he is smart — he materializes things — BUT I WILL ADMIT HIS FAULT IS THAT HE CANNOT DRIVE WALL STREET — for that — he will have a hard time being nominated again — yes he fooled me — not as to his ability — but to his courage — we all know a New York City or State President is one thing we NEVER WANT, be it Al Smith or Roosevelt — those N. Y. guys are too highly educated as to how to reap a harvest — I always thought a Western man was the thing to have — we now have one but he is from the too far WEST — therefore I'm fooled again — but possibly one from the MIDWEST would be better — therefore I suggest Senator Norris or Jim Reed, however the latter would not fight the medical gang against the farmers or suffering humanity.

THE SHOW — It is reported that Governor Dan Turner said in an interview when asked if he was going to Tipton, that — THEY HAD A BIG ENOUGH SHOW THERE NOW — yes they have — and what a discredit to any state governor.

WHY MISREPRESENT — Muscatine's "second paper" carried an article about the farmers storming the jail at Tipton to get a young fellow out on some T. B. testing racket. It was false. The farmers merely went to see if the fellow could be released on account of his family which needed his support and it wasn't about T. B. testing at all, but about changing some license plates on his auto, from one to another. I don't see why our other editor cannot get things RIGHT — at least once in a while. If he keeps on he won't have a subscriber in Cedar county — those boys up there won't stand for these kind of rackets — tell the truth or say nothing.

WICKERSHAM COMMITTEE — can now be dissolved — their crime investigation has been the bunk — too much time spent on the liquor question — now that a doctor comes out and boldly says that crime can be abolished by taking out appendixes, why look farther — one is as silly as the other — all it takes to make the people believe it is to run it in several national papers and the job is done — we can't expect too many to use their heads and read between the lines, as they are too busy looking for jobs.

J. W. LENKER PLACED UNDER ARREST

Baker Asks Iowa Governor To Remove Troops From Tipton

Guards Cost $30,000 Weekly, Publisher Says

Friend of the Farmer Makes Strong Plea To Turner

An urgent appeal to the state's chief executive to order the withdrawal of troops sent to Tipton to enforce the unjust testing of cattle for tuberculosis, and bring to an immediate halt the extravagant and wholly unnecessary expenditure of public funds used to maintain martial law now existing in Cedar county, was made in a telegram sent to Governor Dan Turner Wednesday night by Norman Baker, publisher of the Midwest Free Press and friend of the farmers in their present crisis.

The governor's attention is called in Mr. Baker's message to the fact that the cost of keeping the troops in Cedar county, is approximately $30,000 weekly. He points out that if the other counties in the state stand pat just long enough to draw troops to their sections, even though they consent to the testing, it will mean over half a million dollars in expense to the taxpayers.

Urges Nebraska Plan

The present system of cattle testing, Mr. Baker contends, is also costing hundreds of thousands of dollars which are being needlessly expended. The state of Nebraska, which has had its cattle testing difficulties as well as Iowa, refused to draw more money after the leaders demanded additional appropriations.

Since Governor Turner, in his address to members of the Muscatine County Farm Bureau at West Liberty last week, said he would lower taxes in the next two years, it is suggested by Mr. Baker that the withdrawing of troops from Cedar county, would be a good start toward tax reduction.

Unfair Reports Given

That the unfair reports regarding the Lenker farm affair were misrepresentations that resulted in the governor ordering the troops to Tipton, is the belief of the farmers, as cited in Mr. Baker's telegram to the state executive.

A thorough investigation of the affair in which reports were given the governor that state men were severely beaten when in reality, the incident amounted to a fist fight encounter, is asked by Mr. Baker in his message to the governor. This (Continued on Page Seven)

Davenport Papers Taken to Tipton But Few Are Sold

TIPTON, Ia. — (Special) — Evidently when the farmers are in town there is only one newspaper that can be sold in large numbers on the streets here. That paper is the Free Press, Muscatine's largest newspaper and the fastest growing newspaper in the state of Iowa.

Wednesday representatives of the Daily Times and the Democrat, both of Davenport, with hundreds of papers, appeared on the Tipton streets while before the Free Press salesman arrived, but the farmers decided to wait until they could read the paper which has befriended the farmers. To distribute their wares at all, the Davenporters were forced to give them away as though they had been hand bills.

When efforts to sell the Davenport papers failed, they were taken to the fairgrounds and given to the national guardsmen stationed there. Large numbers of them were also distributed on the streets, but though they were given away most of the farmers refused to buy them.

During the past two days almost 1,000 copies of the Free Press have been sold on the Tipton streets.

The WEATHER man says

MUSCATINE: SUNSET, 5:54; SUNSET, 6:00.

IOWA: Cloudy, showers tonight and probably east and central portions Friday morning; somewhat warmer in north and central portions tonight and Friday; showers beginning late tonight or Friday; somewhat warmer in north and central portions tonight and in south portion Friday.

MISSOURI: Showers probable tonight and Friday; somewhat warmer in north and central portions tonight and in south portion Friday.

GENERAL FORECAST: The indications are for considerably cloudiness over the north-central states tonight and Friday, with showers over the middle and lower Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys tonight, and over the eastern portion of this forecast district on Friday. Temperatures will be somewhat higher over the upper Mississippi valley tonight.

K-TNT TRANSFER IS REFUSED BY COMMISSIONERS

Federal Radio Board Continues to Work Against Farmers

Transfer of Radio Station K-TNT from Norman Baker to the Progressive Publishing Company of Muscatine to be used for broadcast purposes exclusively by the Mid-West Free Press has been refused by the federal radio commission, according to advices today from Washington, D. C.

Although expecting just such action on the part of the federal radio authorities those interested in the transfer of K-TNT to the Progressive Publishing Company were disappointed. The commission is continuing its work against the farmers and laborers of the middle west and predict that it will all re-act against the administration in 1932.

It is pointed out that the people are getting tired of the radio commission's tactics in seeking the cards against them especially when it is taken into consideration that the Progressive Publishing Company was acting in good faith in making application to lease K-TNT without any connection with Norman Baker.

When asked today why they permitted the K-TNT station in Kansas to be leased and refused K-TNT the same right the federal commissioners tried to explain that Kansas was under quota in radio stations while Iowa was over quota but failed to explain why then Examiner Yost had recommended 25,000 more watts for Stations WHO and WOC.

Another thing the people of the middle west are going to watch is whether the Iowa Broadcasting Company, which is nothing more or less than the Des Moines Register which has purchased the stations at Clarinda, Fort Dodge, Cedar Rapids and Ottumwa will be granted more power or permits to build larger transmitters, which would prove beyond all doubt that it is not because Iowa is over its quota that the transfer of K-TNT radio commission are against the farmers, laborers and common folks of the middle west and don't care who knows it.

GOVERNOR SAYS THAT T. B. LAW TO BE OBEYED

Turner Gives Views on His Return to Des Moines

DES MOINES, Ia. — (INS) — Gov. Dan Turner today reiterated his determination to carry out enforcement of the bovine tuberculosis law to the fullest extent.

This was the governor's first day in his office since the militia was ordered into Cedar county and he spent most of his time acquainting himself with matters connected with the Cedar county affair.

"One case of organized resistance to the law," the governor said, "might easily lead to other such disturbances. The law must be obeyed by all. The property and the rights of all must be protected. The forces of the state will be used to this purpose as long as there is need for such action."

PLEADS GUILTY TO CHARGE

AMES, Ia. — (INS) — Earl D. Crispin of Waukegan withdrew his plea of not guilty in the Ames municipal court Wednesday and entered a plea of guilty to a charge of reckless driving in connection with an automobile accident Monday two miles south of Ames highway 65. He was fined $50 and costs.

Troops Hold "Fighting Dutchman"

Jake Lenker, president of the Cedar County Farmers Protective Association who is widely known throughout agricultural circles as "The Fighting Dutchman" of Cedar County is pictured above with his wife standing in front of their farm home 14 miles south of Tipton, where 2,000 members of the state militia are stationed to enforce the unpopular Iowa T. B. bovine test law. Mr. Lenker was placed under arrest this morning by the military authorities and held in the military camp at Tipton when an effort to test his cattle failed because state veterinarians and troops could not find any cattle to test.

JAPAN SEEKING PEACE IN CHINA

TOKYO — (INS) — In an effort by the Japanese Government to reach a peaceful settlement with China without intervention by the League of Nations, Japanese occupational forces in Manchuria received orders today to withdraw inside the zone of the south Manchurian railway.

The instructions to the army were contingent upon the ability of Chinese authorities to maintain order outside the railroad zone.

At least a dozen cities, including Mukden, were still reported under Japanese control with military heads expressing fears of renewed outbreaks against Japanese if the troops withdrew too hastily.

It was stated authoritatively that the cabinet would oppose any attempt by the League of Nations to arbitrate the differences between China and Japan, although appeals from the league council and from the United States for a cessation of hostilities had the effect of hastening a solution of the Manchurian problem.

Japan will insist however, officials said, on direct negotiations with Manchurian authorities or the Chinese nationalist government, while keeping the League of Nations advised of its efforts to restore peace.

Like his father, the son is strongly opposed to the state tuberculosis test laws which require every farmer to permit state veterinarians to test their cattle.

He has not taken as active a part in the uprising of the Cedar county farmers which this week resulted in the declaration of martial law.

SON OF LENKER STICKS BY DAD IN T. B. FIGHT

Says 'Our Time Will Come Yet' When Interviewed

TIPTON, Ia. — (INS) — "Papa said there is no use shedding blood, but our time will come yet," Howard Lenker, son of J. W. Lenker, Cedar county farmer and president of the Iowa Farmers Protective Association who today was placed under arrest by military authorities.

The younger Lenker emphasized his father's statements made prior to his arrest that "they may test our cattle here in Cedar county, they may test the cattle in every county in Iowa, but if they do they'll have to call out the militia in every county."

Lenker arrived at his father's farm, sixteen miles south of here, just after two hundred guardsmen had left the place with his father in custody.

Like his father, the son is strongly opposed to the state tuberculosis test laws which require every farmer to permit state veterinarians to test their cattle.

He has not taken as active a part in the uprising of the Cedar county farmers which this week resulted in the declaration of martial law.

ALLEGED BANK EMBEZZLER FREE

AMES, Ia. — (INS) — V. R. Semans, former receiver for the Peoples Savings bank of Nevada and a number of other closed story banks, was free today of a charge of embezzling $1,000 from the Peoples Savings bank. The story county grand jury, reporting Tuesday at Nevada, failed to return a true bill against him. County Attorney Jeffrey Hougren said Wednesday that no evidence against Semans was submitted to the grand jury.

LATEST EXTRA!

Objector Is Removed To Tipton Army Camp

TEAR GAS BOMB BRINGS TROOPS

Pictured above is one of the two tear gas bombs touched off Monday at the Jake Lenker farm in Cedar county by state veterinarians in a futile effort to disperse farmers gathered to peacefully resist the testing of Lenker's cattle. Indignation was aroused among the farmers with the result that several of the would-be testers were slapped because the effects of the bomb were felt by three farmers, one a world war veteran who was rendered unconscious and paralyzed for a time.

Without a doubt this is the reason why the state troops are in Tipton today.

Farmers state that Governor Dan Turner was greatly misinformed as to what actually happened Monday and the state men's stories sent to him were grossly exaggerated and utterly without foundation.

Furthermore they are of the opinion that if the state's chief executive had been an eye-witness he would know there was and is no necessity for the troops being in Cedar County.

Farm Has Been Placed Under Guard by Troopers

TIPTON, Ia. — (INS) — A detachment of about 50 National Guardsmen left here this afternoon with veterinarians for Muscatine county where J. W. Lenker is believed to have hidden his cattle.

The guardsmen, equipped with two machine guns threaten violence if any resistance is met if the cattle are found.

Militia officers stated that the Lenker cattle will be tested wherever found.

Meanwhile, Lenker, the insurgent farm leader, rested in his improvised cell in a stable at the fairgrounds where he is being held for contempt of court after state veterinarians and militia men found that he had removed his cattle when they arrived at his farm to give them the state tuberculosis test.

Cedar County, under martial law, today resembled a wartime battle front. Soldiers patrolled highways and set up guards about farms where the state veterinarians were testing cattle for symptoms of tuberculosis.

..TIPTON, Ia. — (Special) — J. W. Lenker was arrested on a charge of breaking the Iowa quarantine law according to reports from Tipton this afternoon. The sheriff read the law to Lenker. Howard Lenker, son of J. W. Lenker, who is a prisoner at the military camp at Tipton, told International Service that a detachment of state militia had arrived this morning at the officers without resistance.

The state militia learned on arriving at the Lenker farm that day that Lenker had sold his cattle unbeknownst to officials.

"Might as well give up without bloodshed," the elder Lenker confided to his son this morning. "The fight won't end here, though."

When troops moved into the area north-west of Durant after the arrest at Lenker's home they first stopped at the Nickolous farm where three squads marched into the yard.

Olderog informed the officers that he would not resist the testing and state veterinarians Strong and Weir made the inoculations.

TIPTON, Ia. — (INS) — State veterinarians under the direction of their chief, Dr. Peter Malcolm, today began testing Cedar county cattle in accordance with the state tuberculosis test law.

The testing began at the J. W. Lenker farm where state veterinarians were assaulted a few days ago when they attempted to test the Lenker stock. Dr. Malcolm was assisted in the testing by eight other state veterinarians. A detachment of the 188th field artillery accompanied the doctors to the farm and remained outside the gates, ready to act upon a moment's notice.

Barbed wire was stretched across the road and mounted machine guns were held in readiness.

Veterinarians Present

More than 100 veterinarians can be called to assist in the work if necessary, according to a statement issued here Wednesday by Dr. Peter A. Malcolm, chief of the state veterinarians. Late Wednesday night eight doctors had arrived to aid county veterinarians in the tuberculosis testing of Cedar county cows and were expected to begin work early Thursday morning.

Farmers here today were still firm in their earlier testament of "Thou Small Not Test" in spite of the fact that they had declared in conference with Brigadier General Park A. Findley that they would welcome the state troops to their farms. Large groups of farmers gathered around the oil station, operated by the Farmers Union to discuss their plans for resistance.

Six farmers Tuesday night requested and were granted a conference with Brigadier General Finley and insisted that they would welcome the troops to their farms. A proclamation, officially placing the county under martial law, was read here Wednesday noon by Brigadier General Finley. The proclamation declared that the officials of the county had become unable to handle the local situation and had solicited outside aid. The order was drawn up by Governor Dan Turner.

Little Activity Noted
Activity at the fair grounds, west of town, where the troops have set up their tents, continued in the minimum here. Preparations for further action today were carried out with several companies being drilled in various formations of attack. Officers entered into conference with Dr. Malcolm and later announced that activity and testing would begin today.

With rumors that Cedar county farmers were threatening to boycott local merchants, Tipton citizens were not relieved by the arrival of troops, rumors that demonstrations might occur Wednesday afternoon or evening proved groundless.

Sentiment in the city was divided with some taking the side of the farmers and others falling in line with the troops. Many were of the opinion that the testing would begin without the slightest resistance while others entertained notions that considerable violence would be in store for troops and veterinarians. But, violence or quiet submission, troops were prepared this morning to accompany every veterinarian on his trips to the various farms.

As was previously supposed, officials have declared that testing will begin with the some three score farmers who have been placed under injunctions for former resistance.

for the testing work. All roads at county lines were closed and no autos were permitted to pass. This prevented farmers from gathering. When state men and doctors arrived at the Lenker farm, no cattle were to be found and consequently no testing was done, despite the fact that Mr. Lenker was taken away by the state troops to the "troop jail" at the fair grounds.

Subscriptions Cancelled
Farmers are indignant because some of the newspapers have entered the fight against them, and wholesale cancellation of subscriptions are being made. The farmers are taking the stand that the troops are sufficient without those newspapers, who have been favored with their support, joining forces against them.

Attempts to reach representatives of the papers who are accused of taking the stand against the farmers, were unsuccessful.

Other Industries Follow Wage Cuts of 'Big Steel'

Administration Much
Worried by Turn
Of Events

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The alacrity with which other large industries have followed the lead of "Big Steel" and announced wage cuts averaging ten per cent dismayed President Hoover and his advisers today. But no administration move to check or to off-set the wage trend appeared in the office.

It is frankly anticipated in Washington that the railroads will be the next to follow the lower wage trend. The carriers now have pending before the Interstate Commerce commission, a petition for a 15 per cent horizontal increase in rates, which very few anticipate is going to be granted. Unless it is granted, the expectation prevails throughout governmental circles that the railroads are going to slash the wages of ordinary labor. Even if the commission grants a 5 per cent increase in rates, which many believe possible, the feeling is prevalent that it will not deter the carriers from reducing their operating expenses via the wage cut route.

A decision by the commission on the rate increase is expected by the middle or last of October. Fear Disturbances
What will happen if and when the railroads follow the example of the steel, automotive, rubber and other industries is a matter of considerable conjecture and little real knowledge on the part of administration officials. They are frankly fearful of industrial disturbances being added to what already promises to be an extremely difficult winter.

Railroad labor is pretty thoroughly organized and conscious of its power. This has been amply demonstrated many times in the past fifteen years. In any event, it is not as helpless as labor in the steel industries, which despite prodigious efforts by the A. F. of L. has remained largely unorganized and thus unable to defend itself by concerted action.

Green Issues Statement
In his bitter statement of last night, uttered only after careful deliberation, William Green, president of the American Federation, suggested that the phrase "there will be hell to pay" might logically be taken as the outcome of widespread wage-cutting. His statement was aimed more at the railroads than at steel, for railroad labor is more in a position to enforce its demands.

Green only hinted at retaliatory action in the case of the steel workers. He suggested a mode of congressional action by pointing out that the present high tariff rates on steel and steel products were established upon the theory that the American working man had to be assured of protection in his standard of living.

Steel Tariff Falls
If this standard of living is now to be lowered, he said, then it is evident that the steel tariff rates have failed of their purpose and should be lowered for the benefit of the consuming public.

This suggestion will strike a responsive chord in the minds of a considerable section of congressmen which already opposes the high rates of the Smoot-Hawley law. Whether anything will come of it, however, is doubtful. Both republicans and democrats are charged with starting tariff or tax fights on the eve of a national election.

The White House is dismayed but silent concerning the wage cutting trend. All that has emanated from there since the announcement was the statement, "Mr. Hoover's anxiety for the maintenance of standards of living in this country has been constant and is unaltered."

Plaintiffs Dismiss Two District Court Actions Here Today

Two actions, one a suit for personal injuries and the other a divorce suit, were dismissed by attorneys for the plaintiffs in district court today.

In the suit of Minnie Bowser against Raymond Toyne, the sum of $3,385.20 had been asked for injuries alleged to have been sustained on Feb. 21, 1931, when she was struck by a car driven by Toyne at Second and Brook streets.

Her divorce action against Peter Tidemann, who dismissed her divorce action against Peter Tidemann, had charged him with cruelty. An attachment writ in the sum of $2,500 was dismissed and all attached property released.

CLINTON, Ia. — (INS) — September grand jury late Wednesday returned 19 indictments, nine of which are secret. Five no bills were returned and were passed on to the next grand jury. The body was in session three days.

The indictments are: Theodore Lewis, keeping a gambling house; Mrs. Carrie Jones, Lyle Willard, Minnie Thompson and Mike To-neff, O. R. Champlin, Andrew Payson and Charles Creely, maintaining liquor nuisances; Louise Klesper; James Shields, possession of counterfeit papers; Leroy Mayall, operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated; H. R. Hendershott, assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

The Rev. I. Hawley Honored at United Brethren Meeting

According to a long distance call to the Free Press this afternoon the Rev. Ira Hawley, pastor of the local United Brethren church, has received the honor of being elected by the Iowa conference of U. B. churches now in session at Des Moines, as superintendent of the conference during the ensuing year.

A new system has been adopted by the conference that the superintendent also will be a pastor. The conference is divided into eight districts with a leader appointed for each district by a stationary committee, including the bishop and the conference superintendent. Rev. Hawley states that those leaders will be announced later.

Fred W. Luchring, former athletic director of the University of Minnesota, is now connected with the University of Pennsylvania.

tial law in the county and the establishment of a camp of 2,000 Iowa guardsmen at the fairgrounds near Tipton.

"I'd rather shoot my cows than have them tested again," young Lenker declared. He seemed to approve of his father's action in removing his cattle from his farm even though it did result in his arrest for violation of the proclamation of martial law.

Young Lenker said that his herd was tested about two or three years ago and since then he had lost a large majority of his calves.

"I have three children of my own. Do you suppose I would give my children milk from my herd without having it tested for tuberculosis," Howard said.

He explained that he had always had his milk tested but only once had had his herd tested by the serum test, to which the farmers are objecting.

Authorities who came to arrest Lenker at 8 a. m. after having had a guard posted around the Lenker farm and surrounding country for four hours, seemed rather surprised that they found Lenker at home.

One officer said that he had supposed that Lenker would leave for "parts unknown" after removing his cattle from his property, was calmly awaiting arrival of troops and took his arrest very philosophically.

According to the officers, Lenker greeted the guardsmen with the request that he be permitted to change to clean clothes. The request was granted and the farmer is reported to have started in the house, but instead of changing clothes stopped to say goodbye to his family and then entered an automobile.

He was taken to the military camp and placed under guard as prisoner number 1. What disposition is to be made of his case is not known but it is believed he will be given a military court trial. This report, however, was unofficial since camp officers have refused to make any statement regarding the case.

Pythian Lodge to Make Plans Friday For District Meet

The regular meeting of Wyoming lodge No. 76, Knights of Pythian will be held in the Pythian home Friday evening. Business of special importance pertaining to the grand lodge will be transacted and every member is asked to attend.

Final plans will be made relative to the sixth district annual convention to be held next Tuesday afternoon and evening, Sept. 28, at Grand Mound, Ia. An attractive program at which grand lodge, past grand and district officers will participate, also Tigris temple No. 219 D. O. C. K. of Davenport and the tri-cities, has been arranged.

A large class of candidates will be initiated into the rank of page by the team of Pluto lodge of Eldridge. Arrangements have been made for entertainment for the ladies by the Pythian Sisters temple of Grand Mound.

DEPRESSION SAID TO EFFECT PUBLIC HEALTH

NEW YORK — (INS) — Economic depression has caused a marked increase in illness in this city. A statement to this effect contradicted one recently issued by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cummings, chief of the public health service, saying the industrial depression "seems to have had no general adverse effect on health and mortality rates." In a survey of 141 hospitals for the past four years ending Dec. 31, 1930, Homer Wickenden, general director of the United Hospital fund, discovered a maximum annual increase of two per cent. Days of care given to hospital patients during 1929 were 5.3 per cent over those of 1928. In 1930 they rose to 6.3 per cent over the preceding year.

Unofficial figures show that many people in need of medical attention have been forced to remain away from institutions because of financial difficulties.

Colonial Brown Inspired by the Colonial Exposition in Paris, is a new shade of brown that is appearing upon the fashion horizon. This tone is very, very deep and rich and an undeniably distinguished. A new suit of this color is developed in a nubby woolen material, and has a knee length coat with a small shawl collar, and wide belt of the material. The skirt is plain with no flare.

Of Wool Many of the new fall frocks are of light weight wool, a material that is extremely supple this year. One smart black dress has elbow deep cuffs and a draped scarf collar of brilliant green velvet, while the broad black belt repeats the green in an inset.

White Lingerie Nothing quite takes the place of white silk lingerie in the hearts of fastidious women, and so it is pleasant to know that it is possible to obtain charming pieces in white edged with real valenciennes and trimmed with very simple and formal designs in hand work.

As clever as clever can be, is a lamp with a cylindrical base of dark tone ornamented with gold stars and a gold border. A section of the base opens to reveal a hidden place for matches and cigarette and the enchanting shade has a border of painted match sticks.

Baptist Group Has Supper and Business Meet

The Rev. Vernon Shontz, pastor, announced at the meeting that word had been received from Dr. W. H. Rogers, former pastor of the church, saying that he would be present for the entire celebration Oct. 4-11 which will observe the anniversary of the church and the mortgage cancelling.

Human Hair Hat Latest Crink in Fashion World

By ALICE L'ANGELIER

PARIS—(INS)—Hat madness may refer to the hair instead, for the hair-hat is the newest crink in fashionable head covering appearing in chic gatherings in the capital these days.

Berets are being seen entirely made of human hair, and the madness comes in selecting an ash-blond variety if you happen to be a dark brunette, and a lovely black one, dark as night, if you boast two bright blue eyes. Not a few young Mam'zelles in their teens have been seen wearing little berets of grey locks and of course looking much the younger for this utter disrespect of old age!

Fur also promises to make a number of smart bonnets for cold weather to come, one of the newest versions being in beige astrakhan trimmed with a dark brown gros grain ribbon and beige quill sticking up at the side.

Agnes is using a great deal of crocheted chenille. Overlaid comes in black and orange. Balancing the movement over the hair and holds the hat fast to the head.

A band of caracul hoes on another mad model of dark brown felt which is very long and draped on one side with a bow of the caracul for the trim.

MRS. SWINNERTON FINDS FORTUNE IN OLD STOCK SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—An old desk in the home of James Swinnerton, noted artist, in a suburb near here, gave up a mystery that for a while was very thrilling in a financial way.

Mrs. Swinnerton bought the desk about 12 years ago. While she was cleaning it up recently she pulled out a drawer and beneath a sheet of papers discovered a certificate for 2,800 shares of stock in an oil company at $10 per share. It was made out in 1914 to Douglas S. Watson, of San Francisco, father-in-law of Herbert Hoover, Jr.

Quite excited Mrs. Swinnerton communicated with Watson. He sighed and said: "Thank you very much indeed. Have you a fireplace, Mrs. Swinnerton? Then you will do me a favor if you will be so kind as to start your very next fire with that piece of paper."

Watson said the company had been out of existence for years.

To remove ink stains from linen, put the cloth in milk and let it soak for about two hours. Take it out and wash with soap while the milk still remains on the spot.

To make good uncooked icing thorough beating is necessary. Too much sugar and too little beating makes a brittle, hard icing.

DARÉ INTERPRETS the MODE

Brown broche is made into an Autumn suit on swankily simple lines, and worn with a beige georgette blouse. (Sketched in a New York shop.)

"BROWN" says Autumn inexorably. So brown it is—and it really isn't as dull as it sounds. For brown today includes every shade and tint from warm cafe au lait to a brown that has to be looked at twice before one sees it isn't black.

But the most popular browns are those warm, vivid, autumn-leaf browns, with distinct tones of gold or red. Rust and copper red are the "metallic" browns of the season. It is a color that is highly in keeping with the brighter eyes, the rosier cheeks and the higher spirits of Autumn, and becoming in one of its many shadings, at least, to just about all women. The lighter browns, especially in wool crepes and velvets, use narrow bandings of mink or sable fur discreetly at collar or cuff, and darker browns show a decided preference for Persian embroideries or copper beads applied in little collars and narrow cuffs.

And, so, my dears, if you choose your particular brown with care you'll fit in beautifully with the autumn-leaf bluster of smart, autumn gowns that's whirling merrily over the whole wide fashion world on these glorious days!

The Beauty Sorceress "GRANDMOTHER Muffet, the day you said to use a depilatory to remove hair from the legs! I can't STAND the idea of depilatories. I'd rather just let the hair grow!"

"Goodness, my dear, where have you been these last few years—don't you know that depilatories have become modern, too, substituting their dirty greenish color and rotten-egg odor with creamy whiteness and a faint fragrance that isn't the least unpleasant?"

JUST because Autumn suits are smartly simple lines is no reason for thinking of them as "plain little things!" I have illustrated a suit for you today that would be simple, if it depended on line alone, but as it's of brown broche, the velvet cut in bold floral figures, it's the height of dressiness and sophistication! The jacket, with its plain, tight sleeves, is lined with brown satin. And the blouse with its simple little round collar is of printed beige georgette, with rows of narrow valenciennes lace applied in a square vestee effect.

If you just love the beauty of broche or any of the novel and lovely velvet fabrics that have appeared this Autumn, do be careful not to spoil their own particular beauty with great elaboration of line or detail! These fabrics are lovely enough in themselves, and if you're not careful, they will be "too much of a good thing!"

SCOOP hat with a wavy brim perches on Miladi's head pertly and precariously, as I've sketched for you today!

THE LOVE MASQUE By Barbara Webb (Copyright By Public Ledger)

CHAPTER XXIII

HOW would you like a long walk this afternoon?" Count Slavin was speaking over the telephone to Phyllis on a sunny wintry day that had already beckoned to her from the terrace outside her sitting-room window.

"I'd love to — can't you come now? Perhaps we could even walk all the way to M. Rosoff's for my lesson—that is, if you can spend all that time with me."

"There's nothing, literally nothing, I'd like better. Shall I come at once?"

"Yes, do."

Phyllis ran to get ready, and a short time after Count Slavin was announced. They were both ready to leave when Wilkins came in to say: "There is a phone message, Miss Marjorie, from Miss Wolfe. She says it is very important."

Phyllis went at once to the telephone. "Yes, Kay?"

"Darling, I want you to come down to City Hall now, right away. Oh, I'm so excited I can hardly talk, but you will come won't you? Please, Marjorie, don't wait for a cab or the car, just come down in the subway. That's quickest."

Phyllis hesitated a moment, and Kay's eager voice broke in again. "Why don't you answer, Marjorie? What's the matter?"

"Nothing, I'll love to come, only Theodore has been here to lunch and we were just starting out to spend the afternoon tramping up 5th avenue."

"Bring him along. He's a good scout and we need another witness anyway. I thought we'd have to sail in a taxi chauffeur, maybe. Sure, bring Teddy with you, Granby likes him, too. We'll meet here in half an hour, then. Don't fail me, honey. I'm pretty nearly dead now from excitement."

Slavin Hesitates

Turning from the telephone, she said to the count, "Would you like to go to a wedding, Theodore?"

"But certainly. Whose wedding, and where and when?"

"Kay Wolfe and Granby Fellows are going to be married at City Hall this afternoon. I had already promised Kay I would go with her, and she has asked me to get you to come along, too."

Slavin hesitated. "This marriage—it is against her mother's wishes, is it not?"

"Yes, but only because Gran is poor. She has nothing else against him, and Kay and Granby have been in love with each other for a long time. I'm sure they'll be happy, and probably Mrs. Wolfe will forgive them in time."

Still Slavin hesitated. "I don't wish you to think me lukewarm about whatever you wish to do, Marjorie. But marriage is a serious thing, and marriage against the parents' wishes is almost never wise."

Phyllis looked straight at him, then urged on by the reckless mood she was in, she said coolly: "But you're planning something of the same sort yourself, aren't you? After all, my grandfather has much more the same authority over me that Kay's mother has over her. I happen to be a little older—Kay is only 19, but—"

"Then you have thought of it?" he asked eagerly.

Phyllis regretted her hasty words, but there was no way of backing out of them now. "Yes, I have thought of it," she admitted, "but—but I haven't come to any definite conclusion as yet."

"Let us go—we must hurry." He ignored the latter part of her speech and hurried toward the door.

door. "One must never keep a bride and groom waiting."

He made no further reference to his own hopes, but piloted her through the subway rush, talking like a boy going to the circus for the first time.

They climbed the stairs to the surface and crossed the pavement in front of City Hall. There on the steps stood Kay, radiant, and Granby, sober of face, and slightly embarrassed in manner.

"Come," Kay cried, "let's hurry. I can't wait to be made Mrs. Granby by Fellows. I'm afraid Gran will change his mind."

The Worst Is Over

Kay was wearing a tailored suit under a short fur coat. A big bunch of violets pinned to her collar was the only evidence that this was a festive occasion.

"Gran bought them for me," she whispered to Phyllis, "and the darling lamb who couldn't afford to buy me an engagement ring spent all his money on a diamond-set wedding ring. Wasn't that sweet of him? He came up from Boston to try a case and when I went to the train with him this morning he said, 'Kay, some time I'll just have to take you with me. You don't know how damned lonely it is to go back to Boston and leave you here.'"

"No, I'm sure of that. And do you know that in a way I think mother will be glad? If I'd waited she would have been forced into the position of having a wedding for me when she didn't want to. All in all, she may be very glad we took this way out."

"I hope so."

They arrived in the courtroom where licenses were issued and Kay and Granby joined the line that waited before the window. Phyllis and Slavin stood to one side watching.

A few moments later Slavin held out his hand to Granby as he approached with the marriage license in his grasp.

"Congratulations," the Count said heartily, "now you are all but married. The worst is over, no?"

"All but the promising to cherish, honor, obey and so on," Kay spoke tremulously, "and I'm all ready to do that."

"To obey, too?" Granby asked teasingly.

"Surely. After all it's only an old form, bound with time, that we go through. Why not have all the traditions left in it, for good measure?"

"A sensible view," Count Slavin declared, "and after all in this century did any woman ever obey her husband unless she really wanted to?"

They laughed at his seriousness and went in search of a marrying justice. They found one very soon, a pompous little old man, with a voice like the roar of the sea. He looked over their license, placed them side by side in the tiny window of his office, straightened his coat and began to read the service to them.

"I, Kay, take thee Granby—" Phyllis felt her hand caught by Theodore's and she was content to let it stay there for a moment. Let them say what they would, there was a dignity and beauty to the old service that was sheer poetry. Suddenly it did people good even to speak such noble words.

Granby bent to kiss Kay and suddenly Phyllis jerked her hand free. In that moment when Granby's lips touched his wife's, Phyllis had a blinding picture of John Gage bending thus to Adele. She stifled an exclamation. She couldn't bear it, this thought of John and Adele. If they were married before this wretched masquerade of hers was over, she would have to run away. She couldn't go to that wedding. It would kill her.

There wasn't any reason for it. She knew then that always, whatever she might do, wherever she might go, she would love John Gage. To have him take her hand in his and promise to love and cherish her—Phyllis drew in her breath sharply and let it out in a long sigh. Bliss—happiness—ecstasy!

"Here, no tears at my wedding, young woman," Kay cried.

"Then dry your own, darling." Granby suggested, pulling out a very large and masculine handkerchief and handing it to her.

They all laughed, and Kay and Phyllis dried their eyes and waited for Granby to see the justice, sign the final papers and announce that it was time to leave.

"Now where?" Kay asked when they were down in the square again.

To the Boston train before the newspapers set hold of this? Granby said looking nervously around him.

Slavin hailed a cab. "We'll all ride to the station together and afterward I will take Mrs. Marjorie home," he said looking nervously around him.

It was true. The blinding revelation of her love for John Gage, his apparent hopelessness, Kay's happiness, the emotion aroused by the whole scene had told on Phyllis far more than she could have known. There they parted, Kay and Phyllis kissing each other warmly, the men shaking hands fervently.

"I've sent mother a wire," Kay told Phyllis, "and I'm hoping that she won't make too much fuss. But I don't really care, I'm too happy."

Back in her room Phyllis sat for a long time staring at the wall. "There's just one thing to it," she told herself. "I'll stand about another week of this and then I'll have to get out of it all. I can't bear it any longer. It's too much for me."

And she buried her bright head in her pillows and indulged in the luxury of a good cry.

The Law and the T. B. War

"The law must be obeyed." This is the sole argument of Governor Turner and the present Iowa state administration and their sole excuse for declaring martial law in Cedar county and throwing 2000 armed state troops against the resisters to the T. B. cattle test.

In this connection a very bright light is thrown on the ideas of Governor Turner and his henchmen regarding the enforcement of the law.

J. W. Lenker, president of the Farmers' Protective Association and leader of the T. B. test resisters, broadcast the following story Wednesday:

When the state T. B. testers went to the Lenker farm a few days ago to forcibly test Mr. Lenker's cows a state official proposed to Mr. Lenker that if he would let them test his cows they would give his herd a clean record. Mr. Lenker pointed to one of the cows and asked,

"How can you give my herd a clean record when that cow has lumps on her tail, and according to your idea, has tuberculosis?"

The representative of Governor Turner and supposed representative of the people said:

"If you will let us test your herd peaceably, we will give you a clean record, anyway."

Citizens of Iowa, don't fail to get the full meaning and significance of this.

An officer of the law representing the Turner administration without the knowledge or consent of the citizens of Iowa or the legislators who passed the law, offered to secretly bargain off that law and break it for no other reason than to save the face of the present state administration.

He offered to pass a cow and give her a certificate of good health, which according to his own theories had tuberculosis, which infected her milk with tubercle germs and endangered the health and lives of Iowa babies and adults!

How is this for protecting the health of the public? How is this for obeying the law?

These men who had so little respect for the health of the people of Iowa and such utter contempt for the law that they made it an object of cheap political bargaining, are the very men who rushed armed soldiers against men who are resisting the destruction of their property and the starvation of their families by a rotten law, thereby risking human lives and loading a terrific cost on the taxpayers of the state and for the sole purpose of saving the political face of the gang in power.

We ask in all honesty, which is the worst, for honest citizens to resist a bad law passed by men utterly ignorant of the medicine and medical test involved, or for state officials under oath to serve the people and obey the state constitution bargaining off the law like fish on a sales counter, to have their political faces?

If we are going to have law obedience, let it begin with Governor Turner and the state officials. Let them set an example. Let them quit running the state like a racket, or there will be a clean-up next election such as Iowa has never experienced before.

Hurrah, It's the Appendix

Hurrah! The cause and cure of crime has at last been discovered. The little old appendix which has been blamed by the medical trust doctors for every disease under the sun and has been subjected to the greatest surgical slaughter known in history, has been located also as the cause of crime and is to be subjected to still greater massacres.

It all comes about by having a good old medical trust M. D. on the Hoover crime commission. Dr. W. A. Guild, the medical trust member of the crime commission, who hails from Chicago, the headquarters of the medical trust, was the great scientist who made this wonderful discovery.

The good doctor was grieved over the dishonesty of a chain store clerk who was continually short in his books. Surely it must be his appendix and not the desire for money which was prompting all these embezzlements. So out came the sinful appendix and, lo and behold, that clerk immediately became honest and is now managing a chain store system.

Another man with an appendix served time for four forgeries and finally capped the climax by forging a note in order to make a donation to the Salvation Army. Surely, it couldn't be anything but his appendix. So out came his appendix and he hasn't forged a note since. Dr. Guild doesn't say whether or not it cured him of donating to the Salvation Army instead of saving his money for the doctors.

What a discovery! All we have to do now is to have medical trust doctors cut out everybody's appendix and this earth will suddenly be transformed into a paradise without disease, sin or crime! And, oh, what a job for the medical trust—cutting out 120,000,000 appendices at $200 per whack, and then keeping up with the birth-rate forever after!

The only thing that mars this beautiful picture is the possibility that many sinful people will try to keep the docs from getting their appendices. The crime-committing appendix is the best alibi that was ever furnished for doing what you please. It's got the old idea of laying everything on to the Devil beat seven ways. All you have to do in the future, if you're a grafter, gangster, a thief, a briber, a murderer, a bank wrecker or a medical trust doctor, is to say, "I couldn't help it; it was my appendix."

Picture, if you can, what is bound to follow such a condition. Thousands of these would-be alibiers will be chasing all over the United States for safe hide-outs where they can save their appendices; or when caught, swearing with uplifted hands that they never did have and never will have an appendix. Thousands of medical trust doctors armed with meat cleavers will be chasing elusive appendices all over the United States.

Dan Turner reached the turning point in his political career when he turned out the militia to shoot the farmers. As a turner of his own career into the ditch he is an "eternal" success.

Our Platform for the People Is:

1. Less taxation.
2. Fewer State Commissions.
3. Universal school books.
4. Lower freight rates.
5. Return of river transportation.
6. A cleanup of some state institutions.
7. More efficiency in public offices.

The Evening Story

MADLINE'S PARTY DRESS
By Maud Wynn

"Jerry, I can't go."
"Why, Madeline, we've been counting on that dance for weeks."
"Yes, I know Jerry—you won't mind much, will you? I'm sorry, really, if you care. You could—take—Helen," she said hesitantly.

"No, Madeline, I want you. Not that it's any of my business, but what's wrong, dear?"
Madeline burst into tears at the kind solicitation in Jerry's voice.

"Oh, Jerry, I didn't mean to tell you, but I've nothing fit to dance in; you mustn't be ashamed of me."

"Madeline, you are lovely in anything. Go the way you are this minute."

"Oh, Jerry," she laughed, "you are so dear, but don't you see how funny I would look in a blue print house dress, there, with all those silk chiffons? I have been waiting twelve days this month without pay. I expected to earn enough in commissions, so that, with my discount in the dress department, I could get a party dress, but I'm just out of the money."

"Now, little girl, just forget it. Jerry took his own handkerchief and wiped Madeline's tears. "You're good enough for me in whatever you have; we are going."

Waving her a good-by, he called back:

"Till Saturday, Lina."

Madeline set about getting her clothes in order to don hurriedly in the morning.

"Jerry does care, doesn't he? Well, it is worth something to know that," she soliloquized.

In the dress shop the next day where she was employed a attractive man of goods arrived. Madeline was assigned to the stock room to mark dresses.

Her heart ached afresh as she realized how futile her wish. As she lifted one particularly attractive dress from the box and held it up, the other girls gasped—"how lovely—that was made for you, Madeline!" She looked at the size. Yes, it was her size. Impulsively she reached for it, and attached to the dress, tag with a mark several dollars lower than the one she should have used.

By the price tag she knew on just which rack it would be hung. On returning to the department, she slipped it off the hanger, folded it up quite small, held out the tag to the department manager and said:

"What discount for me, please?"

Hurriedly the department head said 20 per cent—and made out an O. K.'d the check.

That night Madeline tried on the dress and she delighted. As she slipped her conscience, and Saturday evening when Jerry called she was radiant.

"Madeline, you are glorious!"

"Nonsense, Jerry, that is because I like me a little."

"A little! I'm dazzled with you, I'm thrilled."

When he brought her home that night he said:

"Wear this again tomorrow, dear."

"All right, Jerry," she agreed, but left alone, she became uneasy and worried. Sleep would not come. She knew she had done something wrong and censured herself for her weakness.

Recalling the teachings of her mother, far away, in her small country home, she knew for a certainty that to keep the dress would be impossible. Restlessly she tossed for a while, then got up and packed the dress carefully in its box.

ready to return on Monday morning. Though somewhat relieved after that, she was concerned about what to say to Jerry.

She could tell him it didn't fit, yet she knew it did, and he had thought it perfect. She might say it was damaged, but that would be adding a lie to her other sin. She could tell him she couldn't afford it. That would be the truth, but he would think her unscrupulous to order a dress to wear on an occasion and then return it. No, she would be ashamed to do that.

Her heart beat a swift tattoo when his bounding step approached and falteringly she went to the porch to meet him.

"Hello, Madeline, dearest, where is the idolized gown today?" She did not answer, and Jerry said, "Come on, let's take it for a walk this beautiful afternoon."

"No, Jerry, I'm not wearing it today, nor ever. You'll never see it again and maybe you won't ever want to see me again, either. Jerry, I cheated and I've got to square up," she hurried on to say. "I'm not dishonest even if I lose you."

Madeline rushed into the house, her pen-emotions loosed.

"Madeline, dearest," Jerry said as he overtook her and swept her into his arms, "how brave you are. There is no virtue in being good when one is not tempted, but you have overcome your temptation."

"I could not love you, dear, so much loved I do not honor more."

Silently he cupped his hands to frame her face, and smiling up at him, she said softly, "Jerry, I'm glad it happened."

NATIVE TONGUE OF SWISS

GENEVA—(INS)—"Romance" is the fourth official language in Switzerland and will be regarded as the only really native tongue of this mountainous country. It is spoken mainly in Canton of Grisons and the Engadine, but the Canton of Geneva has recently decided to create a special chair at its University for furthering the study and use of this language. It is of romance origin and believed to have been the original tongue of the fugitive Tuscan who settled in this land at the time of the first Roman emperors.

PETER ASKS A POSER

Do you know what it means to ask a poser? Well, it means to ask something which no one can answer. Now, when Peter Rabbit said, "Will some one please tell me how under the sun Sooty builds a nest in a chimney?" he asked a poser so far as his feathered friends of the Old Orchard were concerned. They had just been laughing at him and poking fun at him because he knew so little about Sooty the Swift that when he had seen him go down Farmer Brown's chimney he had thought that something had happened to Sooty as a result of which he had fallen down the chimney. This had seemed to the feathered folk of the Old Orchard a great joke. Peter took it good-naturedly and laughed, too, which was a sensible thing to do. Then the birds declared that Peter ought to know something about Sooty and had started in to tell him the things he didn't know. They started in by telling him that Sooty makes his nest in a chimney. Right then Peter asked that simple little question and discovered that he had asked a poser.

He discovered it by the sudden silence that fell. Each one seemed to be waiting for some one else to answer. Peter asked it over again and waited, his eyes beginning to twinkle. He suddenly suspected that the very ones who had laughed at him for his mistake about Sooty didn't know as much about their feathered neighbors as they pretended to.

"Don't all speak at once," said Peter as the silence became rather painful. "You tell me, Jenny Wren," he continued. "You know so much about your neighbors."

For once Jenny Wren's lively tongue seemed to have something to say with it. "Why—why—I suppose he builds it the same as the rest of us build our nests," she stammered.

"But you all build differently," persisted Peter. "You build yours inside a box or in a hollow tree where it cannot fall. Welcome Robin builds his in a crotch of a tree or in a big branch where it cannot fall off. Goldie the Oriole fastens his nest on the end of a branch and lashes it so that it cannot come loose no matter how hard the wind blows. But if a chimney is the same inside as it is outside there is nothing for Sooty to build on, and how can he fasten it to the side? Perhaps he builds it at the very bottom. You ought to know, Welcome Robin. I've often seen you sit on the top of Farmer Brown's chimney."

Welcome Robin stammered as badly as had Jenny Wren. "I've never seen Sooty's nest," he confessed. Then with a toss of his head he added: "I never meddle with the affairs of my neighbors. It is none of my business how Sooty builds his nest, and I've never tried to find out. I know he builds it in that chimney, and that is enough for me. If he wants to go down into that black dirty place he is welcome to it. I wouldn't go down there for the world."

"Chitter—chitter—chitter—chitter!" You wouldn't because you couldn't. There isn't one of you who can go straight down in a place like that, and you know it! cried a voice right over their heads. It was the voice of Sooty himself. He had been circling around just over them and had heard all that had been said. "If they laughed at you for what you didn't know, Peter Rabbit, it is your turn to laugh now. Not one of them ever has seen my nest or knows how I build it. You asked them a poser when you asked them a question, Peter, and if they are honest they will admit it. They pretended to know what they didn't know at all. I tell you what I'll do. I invite every one of you birds to come right over to Farmer Brown's chimney with me right now and come down inside and see my nest. Then you can tell Peter all about it. Come on, Jenny Wren."

But Jenny Wren suddenly remembered that her babies needed her. Welcome Robin had an important engagement. Goldie the Oriole tried to slip away unseen. Chippy the Sparrow remembered that he had had no breakfast. In short, every one of the birds had an excuse and hurried away. Presently Peter found himself quite alone, with Sooty the Swift circling overhead and laughing just as the

"INTERNAL SECRETS"

Why should some men be such benefactors to the world while others seem to take a delight in destroying everything they can?

To find out the answer to this question, people have gone to fortune-tellers, hypnotists, card-readers and many other lines of study to draw people in their endeavor to solve this riddle.

It is said that in the study of bio-chemistry, the sixteen chemical elements which constitute man's body is the cause of his different dispositions. In other words, the chemical composition of a man's blood-stream determines his individual characteristics throughout his life.

Besides the bio-chemical side, there is another consideration to be taken account of, that is, the secretions of the internal ductless glands. According to the latest authorities, these internal glands excrete a substance, characteristic of the gland itself, called a hormone, into the blood-stream, which during its circulation in the blood-stream, causes certain individual characteristics to be made manifest by its contact with the various centers of the nervous system.

Two boys, born of the same parents, might be entirely different from each other and one might be good and the other bad. Some people go to extremes either for good or bad. What causes such a difference in people? What influence is brought to bear upon the birth-center of each one of us that makes such a difference?

We all have hopes and aspirations which we would like to see fulfilled here on earth and we are very dissatisfied until we see these hopes develop into the realities of our dreams.

It is claimed that the internal glands, namely: the thyroid, the pituitary, adrenals, the thymus, the para thyroids, the gonads or sex glands and the pineal—are really the governors which regulate and control the chemistry of the human body. It is claimed that the ductless glands even control bio-chemistry. Could one not go a step farther and suggest that since the tide is influenced by the moon and the life of all growing things is greatly influenced by the sun; and since astronomers are finding out how much influence the different planets have on the weather other birds had laughed at Peter in the beginning.

"Chitter—chitter—chitter—chitter," cried Sooty, racing over Peter's head. "I'll tell you how I build my nest, Peter, and then you'll know something that will give you the laugh on those who laughed at you and pretended to know so much."

Give It A Thought

By Joseph A. Sadony

Are those things worth remembering that count for much. And that leave a deep impression to be profited by?

If so, then why kick because the sacrifice and sorrow helped you to memorize the lesson paid for. So that you may not receive a bill, and still have to pay for it by the lesson you have had to whine over.

You do not believe in a shadow-land. Still you believe in the land of substance. What about dreamland.

Wherein you battle to achieve and defend with tears of sorrow and joy. Only to awaken again into your "substance."

Does this not give you a hint of the possibility of a hereafter?

When a fearful dream, would you not gladly believe in a hereafter in which to "wake up" out of that dream of fear?

And don't you wake up? Well, you are dreaming right now. And will wake up later on to lose all you selfishly possess.

Or to remain all you lost under injustice. For everything is so adjusted that even a sparrow's fall is recorded. Is there anything more accurate in existence.

Than the repetition of the moon's eclipse a thousand years from now.

Even to the very moment—not later, nor ahead of time—as calculations may prove.

Is there anything in your mental make-up to compare with this accuracy?

If not, have a little more trust in the Maker of these laws. In your world of action while traveling with your body.

And in the world of dreams rather than in that body of your imagination.

WHAT! NO HOBBY?

YOUNG MAN seeking inexpensive hobby would welcome suggestions. R.190 Times.—Advertisement in the New York Times.

Dear R-190:

Although I am pretty busy with my own affairs just now, I find myself deeply touched by your plight. The thought of a young man, his mind set on an inexpensive hobby and yet unable to find one unassisted, moves me for a moment. If I thought of a fellow who could take a hobby or leave it alone I would not bother with you, but it is clear from the tone of your advertisement that you are desperately determined to get the best hobby available.

Lots of young men, feeling the need for a hobby, would grab the first one that came to mind, but not you, Mister R-190. And that is why I find your plea so harrowing. Well, it is plain to me that fishing, golfing, stamp collecting and the gathering of old coins will not suit, as they would occur to you at once. You want something different. It must be inexpensive, so that lets out polo, yachting, pheasant farming, the collection of rare chinaware, etc.

Have you thought of flag-pole sitting? This field is getting overcrowded, but those who have tried it, say it is good fun. It costs very little. All you need is a flag pole with a without flag. It keeps you out in the cool, crisp air, increases the red corpuscles and gives you an outlook on life not enjoyed by others. And how about going over Niagara Falls in a barrel? There is a fellow who has made this a hobby and he tells the newspaper men every year that he knows no better good, clean fun. You will need little money for barrel repairs but there is no charge for going over the Falls.

Then there is hog-calling. This has become quite a hobby during the last few years. It doesn't cost a nickel. There are not so many hogs as there were in 1929, but they are still fairly plentiful. You can get a book on hog-calling and master the calls in no time. It's heaps of fun in decent weather. The main purpose of a hobby is to divert the mind, and there are few things more satisfying after a hard day in the office than to go home and indulge in unrestrained hog-calling for an hour or two.

Have you thought of bee keeping? You can start on a couple of bees, and bees are very cheap now, they having declined with everything else. Soap sculpture has its advocates as has cheese modeling. A young man can make the most attractive things out of soap and cheese. I knew a youth who made a model of the Peace Conference in cheese and it was curiously moving.

A good hobby that is taking on just now is writing anonymous books on the life of Washington. All you need is some ink. Any gossip will give you the data. Lariat throwing is fun, too, and fly casting, egg rolling, oyster culture, shadow casting, batik dipping, taxidermy and yodeling also have their attractions to a man in search of an inexpensive hobby.

However, it is all a matter of taste. You will get something I feel certain, and wishing you all kinds of luck, I am, my dear R-190, Yours sincerely, Elmer Twitohell.

P. S.—I forgot to mention guinea pig raising at home for profit.

LOCALS SET FIGHT. PLEASANT TUFFY GRIFITHS FRIDAY NIGHT

KINNAN WORKING LITTLE MUSKIES HARD FOR GAME

McIlraith's B Squad to Play Morning Sun In Opener

"You'll have to fight like wildcats to beat those Panthers Friday night, but all that fight is in you if you just make up your mind to show it," Coach Bob Kinnan of the Little Musky football machine told his 30 candidates for the A squad during a scrimmage with the scrubs at Jefferson field Wednesday afternoon.

Although the A squad players got off to a rather slow start in their scrimmage session against the B team, they finally collected their bearings and it wasn't long before the first string backs were racing through large holes in the line opened by the stalwart Musky varsity forward wall.

That a much smoother Little Musky football eleven will be seen in action against the Mt. Pleasant Panthers under the lights at Jefferson field Friday night is indicated by the impressive drills the squad has turned in this week already. They look better in all departments of the game, from ball totting to tackling.

B Team to Play
As a game of a doubleheader attraction, Friday night, Coach Kinnan will send his young freshmen and sophomore proteges on the field to meet the Morning Sun high school team. This game was arranged definitely Wednesday by high school officials. This contest will get under way at 7 p. m.

Wednesday afternoon Coach Kinnan put his Little Muskies through a stiff two-hour drill with over an hour devoted to scrimmaging with the B team. At the start the younger candidates broke through to their adversaries for losses time after time and when they carried the ball some backfield men would frequently break lose for lengthy gains.

A's In Big Gains

However, after a few changes in the line and backfield, Coach Kinnan's men were tearing through their younger opponents at will and it didn't take long for the varsity to run up three touchdowns. Ed Dillon and Gene Minder did most of the ball carrying for the first stringers with Leo Nugent and Lou Kammerer also doing a good share of it. Other backs seeing much service in A backfield were Guesse, McGuire, McGuire, and Heard. Nugent's sore shoulder, which has kept him out of several scrimmages during the past week, has healed considerably and he was used a good deal in the workout Wednesday afternoon. On several occasions he cut off tackle and around end for long gains. Minder also looked good on the delayed buck and the spinner play while Ed Dillon was the big ground gainer of the scrimmage session. Kammerer and Mills alternated at calling signals.

Bob Hanson, who started at one of the wing posts last week against Tipton, snagged two long passes and raced for touchdowns while Kammerer, Mills, Lee and Lutz were also taking part in the game. Minder for long gains.

Weber to Center

At the center post Coach Kinnan is working Max Lee and Carson Schwandke the most but Bob Weber, who has been performing in the backfield, has been shifted to a center post and may get the opening call at this position. Mel Horst, who played most of the game at the pivot hole against Tipton, has not been in practice the entire week because of a bad leg, but this ailment has been improving somewhat and it is probable Mel may be used at a guard in Friday night's Little Six opener. Weber is also showing up good in the practice sessions. At the ends it will be Lutz at one with either Hanson or Barlow at the other. Ed Dillon also has been performing good at one of the wing positions and may get the opening call.

Guards a Question

At the guards it will be Capt. Ray Utley and either Worst, Horst or Charley Moss. The latter will get the call providing neither Horst nor Worst wound into condition by game time. Maynard Hintermeister has been groomed for a guard post and he too may see service at some time during the game.

The Big Question is Who Will Start in the Backfield

Last week it was Mills-Nugent-Weber-McGuire but Weber has been shifted to the line and Nugent has been suffering with an injury. Guesse, who has been showing up good at McGuire's post while Kammerer has been alternating with Mills at the quarterback position, Ed Dillon has been used at Nugent's place in the backfield and if the latter's shoulder isn't in shape by game time, the former will be started.

At the other back, in Weber's place, Gene Minder has been performing brilliantly. Minder is almost certain to get the opening call at one of the backfield positions and it is probable that he will do the punting and passing. All in all, it looks like the Little Muskies are completely prepared to jar off the lid for the opening loop contest with Mt. Pleasant. Just who will win is hard to say but with the crowd for the locals, and every player in shape and primed to the limit, it would be no surprise

Ingwersen Grooms Shock Troops for Hawkeye Backfield

JOWA CITY—(INS)—A quintet of midget sophomores, averaging less than 160 pounds, were being groomed today as shock troops for Coach Burton A. Ingwersen's University of Iowa football backfield. The pony backs made their debut at the field yesterday, and so baffled varsity linemen that Ingwersen is thinking of using them in games. Greedy and Moffitt, halfbacks; Pickering and Thurst, alternating at quarter; and Armstrong, fullback, showed themselves well in scrimmage against an opposing line.

BACHELOR GIRLS LEAD AT GOLF

Leading Matrons in Play for National Title Honors

By NAN O'REILLY (INS Sports Writer)
BUFFALO, N. Y.—Bachelor girls had the numerical advantage over matrons in the third round of play for the national women's golf championship today. Five of the eight survivors are in the "single" classification.

Regardless of how today's battles end, there will be two unmarried contestants in the semi-final, and probably three. Maureen Orcutt, Canadian titleholder from Englewood, N. J., meets Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, last year's finalist, and the two English women, Enid Wilson and Marjorie Kerr, are involved in another match.

In the married women's class are Glenna Collett, national champion five times; Mrs. Leo Federman, New York; and Mrs. Leona Pressler, Los Angeles. Glenna and Mrs. Federman are playing for the title while Mrs. Pressler and Helen "Billie" Hicks of New York are due for a real battle this morning.

Miss Orcutt Tied
Miss Orcutt tied for the medal at 82 in the qualifying round; went out in 39 to win from Jane Broadwell the first round; and hit a 37 pace to the turn to be 4 up on Bernice Wall yesterday.

Against Francis Williams yesterday she hit a fast pace for the fourteen holes necessary to win the match, three over par. That kind of scoring today will give Maureen something to worry about.

If by any chance, Maureen should be beaten by Virginia, last year's finalist may meet in the semi-final tomorrow, for Glenna is in the other half of that bracket. Glenna may find her hands full with Mrs. Federman.

Helen Hicks came so near oblivion yesterday against Marion Hollins that it looks as though the gods had something good in store for her. Wednesday afternoon, on several occasions he cut off tackle and around end for long gains. Minder also looked good on the delayed buck and the spinner play while Ed Dillon was the big ground gainer of the scrimmage session. Kammerer and Mills alternated at calling signals.

Bob Hanson, who started at one of the wing posts last week against Tipton, snagged two long passes and raced for touchdowns while Kammerer, Mills, Lee and Lutz were also taking part in the game. Minder for long gains.

Weber to Center

At the center post Coach Kinnan is working Max Lee and Carson Schwandke the most but Bob Weber, who has been performing in the backfield, has been shifted to a center post and may get the opening call at this position. Mel Horst, who played most of the game at the pivot hole against Tipton, has not been in practice the entire week because of a bad leg, but this ailment has been improving somewhat and it is probable Mel may be used at a guard in Friday night's Little Six opener. Weber is also showing up good in the practice sessions. At the ends it will be Lutz at one with either Hanson or Barlow at the other. Ed Dillon also has been performing good at one of the wing positions and may get the opening call.

Guards a Question

At the guards it will be Capt. Ray Utley and either Worst, Horst or Charley Moss. The latter will get the call providing neither Horst nor Worst wound into condition by game time. Maynard Hintermeister has been groomed for a guard post and he too may see service at some time during the game.

The Big Question is Who Will Start in the Backfield

Last week it was Mills-Nugent-Weber-McGuire but Weber has been shifted to the line and Nugent has been suffering with an injury. Guesse, who has been showing up good at McGuire's post while Kammerer has been alternating with Mills at the quarterback position, Ed Dillon has been used at Nugent's place in the backfield and if the latter's shoulder isn't in shape by game time, the former will be started.

SHARKEY-CARNERA FIGHT POSTPONED BY BOXING HEADS

Bout Put Off 2 Weeks Due to Invisible Injury to Jack

By LES CONKLIN (INS Sports Writer)

NEW YORK—Due to what the boxing commission doctors say is an invisible injury to his left hand, Jack Sharkey today asked for and obtained a postponement of his fight with Primo Carnera to October 12. The fight had been scheduled for October 1.

Four specialists appointed by the commission examined Sharkey's hand this morning and after a vigorous, and according to Sharkey, painful test they reported that they could find no reason for postponing the match. "There is no evidence of any injury," the medics said, "but pain is a matter for the man alone to decide and Sharkey complained that his left hand pains him."

Sharkey Is Bitter
Sharkey was bitter about the skepticism of the doctors. "They gave me a good workout," he grumbled as he emerged from the examination.

"Naturally I want to be in the best possible shape when I meet Carnera. It's a big chance for me and I want to be ready for it. Those doctors told me that a shot of cocaine would deaden any pain the night of the fight but I'm not going to fool with that stuff."

Warmed up to his subject the man from Boston waxed sarcastic. "They said that the x-ray showed nothing," he said.

Hand Not Broken
"But an x-ray only shows breaks. There's nothing broken in my hand. X-ray don't show tendons, tendons and blood cells."

"I don't know what's wrong with the hand—all I know is that it hurts when I hit even the light punching bag. I haven't been able to do any boxing at all and I'm not going to fight that big guy without being in perfect shape."

Jimmy Johnston, the promoter of the bout, and Leon See the manager of Carnera, were quite upset with the postponement. See said that Carnera is in perfect condition and that he may match him with someone else on that Oct. 1 date just to keep him in shape.

OUTDOOR IOWA

By H. J. METCALF

Iowa Fish and Game Commission

I have noticed the following item in a number of Iowa newspapers: "Heretofore one could not shoot more than three birds (pheasants) in one day of the short open season. Under the changed law he may bag the whole season limit in one day if he can and so choose. That is if the season is five days this year as it was in 1930 and the one day number is three birds, one may kill 15 in one day, or he may divide the 15 among the five days. This is wrong; the hunter may take only three birds in any one day. See Section 1767, all of Chapter 86."

One thing I have noticed particularly among the boys. Fewer of them are carrying air rifles. It was not uncommon some years ago to see hundreds of these rifles in the hands of boys with a resultant damage to song birds. Who says the world isn't getting better?

TOUCHDOWN SECRETS Badgers Vary Spinner Play

By SOL METZGER

Sometimes Coach Thistlethwaite of Wisconsin moves his ends out from the other linemen a yard or two. One reason for this is to get off quick plunges outside of the defensive tackle on the short side of the line. Such a play usually surprises an opposition team.

The one shown here starts like the play explained yesterday. The ball is snapped to back (3), who spins to his left and goes back all the motions of giving it to back (4) as the latter runs to his rear and right. Meantime, back (2) rushes across in front of 3 taking the defensive right end charging in. And lineman (6) swings out of the line to help his left end (7) box the defensive right tackle. Back (1) goes straight ahead in the hope of cutting down one of the defensive backs.

Schaaf Adds Griffith To His List

Ernest Schaaf, Boston heavyweight pugilist, added a hard fought victory over Tuffy Griffith to his list of conquests at the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night. In consideration of Schaaf's record in the last year (he has stopped 9 out of his 14 opponents and knocked out Campello and Roberti recently) he was made the favorite over Griffith, but the latter who disposed of Emmet Reeco by a knockout in a recent engagement made Schaaf extend himself to win.

Michigan Prospects Bright For This Year's Grid Play

Have Plenty of Good Material and Easy Schedule

This is the seventh of a series by Leo Fischer from the Big Ten training camps on the prospects of the various schools. Follow him around the Big Ten for the latest and most accurate "dope." Wisconsin will be next.

By LEO FISCHER

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—An all-conference quarterback, a potential all-American center, a veteran line, some brilliant sophomore halfbacks and a comparatively easy schedule are the ingredients of a championship football team, then the University of Michigan has just that.

Frankly, we admit we're puzzled trying to rate the Wolverines. The team didn't look very hot last year, yet finished in a tie with Northwestern for the title. The year previous Michigan was picked to be the world-beater. The schedule is showing. Now the experts are again picking Michigan as the standout team—but from past experience it seems that the experts are usually wrong about the school.

On paper, the aggregation seems almost perfect. From end to end it lines up practically the same as it did last year, while the two new men in the backfield are rated as world-beaters. The schedule is made to order, with all the conference games at home and arranged in such sequence that the hard ones are preceded by theoretical "pushovers."

Michigan Possible Champ

Yet in spite of all this, we hesitate to pick Michigan as a sure repeater. Possible, yes—but not certain. We don't believe that the Wolverines have improved to the extent that some of their opponents have bettered themselves and one needn't be too much surprised if the team loses at least one of its "big" contests. Ohio, Illinois or Minnesota, Indiana and Chicago are the other Big Ten opponents.

Michigan's offensive will again be built this season, as in 1930, around Harry Newman, who ought to be about the best quarterback in the Big Ten. It was Newman's forward passing which enabled Michigan to stay in the championship race last fall, and it will probably be Newman's passing which will keep the Wolverines in the running this year. Too, Harry has put on a bit of weight and is still throwing line drive forward passes anywhere from ten to twenty yards.

Stanley Fay and Herman Everhardus, sophomores, are almost certain to start the season as regulars in the backfield. Everhardus, a freshman, won the trophy awarded annually by the Michigan alumni club of Chicago, for showing the greatest improvement as a freshman. He has run, kick and pass and will probably be the regular punter. He hails from Detroit and weighs 175.

Fay is a similar type, and is counted on to add plenty of versatility to the Wolverine backfield. Capt. Roy Hudson, at fullback, completes the quartet.

Heston's Son Prospects

Jack Heston, youngest son of the great Willie, is another fine backfield prospect. His brother, Willie, Jr., is now a senior and has done some pretty good work, but he's far from the football player that Jack is. Jack, who prepped at Lake Forest academy, is the best kicker on the squad and can pass as well as run.

They're also counting a lot around here on Harry Stinespring,

WASHINGTON WINS OVER YANKEES AS GOMEZ BLOWS UP

Senators Practically Clinch Second Place By 3 to 2 Win

By COPELAND C. BURG (INS Sports Writer)

NEW YORK—The U. S. S. Akron today boasted of being queen of the world's skies, but Vernon Gomez, youthful hurling star of the New York Yankees, offered some tough competition.

About the same time that the Akron was sailing gracefully over the meadows of Ohio, Mr. Gomez, decided to take his flight and he went right up over the Yankee stadium. When he came down the Washington Senators had defeated the New Yorkers, 3 to 2, and practically clinched second place honors in the American league.

New York must win all of the three remaining games of the Washington series in order to capture the runner-up honors.

Gomez staged his other expedition right after Myer, Washington second baseman, stroked a bunt right at him. Vernon dove for it but missed and pretty soon Washington had scored three runs.

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig were both helpless against the pitching of Lloyd Brown and Fred Marberry. Lou did not get a thing and Ruth just managed to produce a measly single.

In Detroit delegates to the American league convention left the problems of bonus and beer behind them and watched Detroit and Cleveland divide a twin bill.

Indians, Tigers Split
Hudlin only hurled five innings for the Indians but before he was yanked the Tigers had garnered 11 hits and the ball game, 9 to 7. In the final, Brown refused to be torn loose from more than seven safeties, the Indians wrapping it up, 6 to 2. Kamm and Averill, with two blasts each, led the Cleveland attack.

In the National league rain caught the Phillies at Pittsburgh and other clubs were not scheduled to play.

Free Press Will Get Big Service On World Series

With the opening game of the world's series just one week away, International News Service has completed arrangements for the most accurate and comprehensive coverage possible.

This year International News Service will supply the 10,500 Midwestern Free Press readers with distinctive and exclusive features as well as complete and speedy spot news coverage.

Mickey Cochrane, the able and famous catcher of the champion Athletics, will wire a daily story, giving his version of the breaks in each game and the inside story of the contests. In addition Cochrane will write three stories in advance of the series, giving his dope on how the teams stack up this year.

Cochrane's first story will be carried Saturday, Sept. 26th. John P. Medbury, famous humorist, will write daily articles on the lighter side of the battles. His wise cracks will give the Free Press readers a lot of laughs along with the news.

Frank G. Menke, nationally known sports authority and baseball expert will head the staff of writers covering the series. James L. Kilgallen, star feature news and sports writer, will have daily stories. Other news features will be provided by Les Conklin, Copeland C. Burg, Robert G. Hereford and E. L. Rawley.

OLD FEUD

Monte Weaver, who will soon get a pitching trial with Washington, hopes to some day oppose Jim Mooney of the Giants in the box. As young stars in the south they hooked up in a thriller which Mooney won, 1 to 0. He fanned 24 men and Weaver fanned 20. That game attracted the scouts.

TRAINING

With their pennants practically clinched the Cards and A's went into training for the world's series—the Cards battling against the kind of ball used in the National—and the A's giving Cochrane and Stinson a few days off to rest up from a strenuous season's work and injuries.

50,000 Expected to See Robins Battle Giants for Charity

NEW YORK—(INS)—Fifty thousand fans were expected to do battle the polo grounds today when the Brooklyn Robins play a double header for charity with the New York Giants and the New York Yankees.

Eddie Wells probably will pitch for the Yankees and Bill Walker or Fred Pittsmons for the Giants. The Robins will use Joe Shaute against their National league opponents and Freddie Heilmach will face the Americans.

New York's unemployed will receive the gate receipts.

JACK MAY MEET CHAMP AT RENO

Former Champ May Appear in Major Bout in June

RENO, Nev.—(INS)—Climbing the come-back trail, Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, may appear in his first major engagement since his return to the ring at Reno next June, it was indicated today.

Jim McKay and Bill Graham, operators of big gambling interests, here, declared they were prepared to meet any offer that is made elsewhere for Dempsey's services. They plan to match Jack against an outstanding heavyweight in a 25-pound battle.

Although New York, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Miami interests are negotiating for Jack's services, he declared that he was inclined to give the Reno promoters first call on his future fight plans.

"If I feel that my condition warrants it," said Dempsey, "I would welcome a bout with Schmeling in June. Of course much depends on how I get along in the ring in the next few months. If I feel ready for Schmeling, I will prefer to fight him at Reno."

The Reno promoters said they were ready to post a substantial sum of money as a guarantee of good faith.

"We can handle the crowd," said McKay. "We now have a 20,000 door arena which seats 20,000 and we could increase this to an 80,000 or 100,000 capacity."

"If Jack is ready to fight for the highest bid, we will accept it and money is all that is needed to bring the fight to Reno, then the match is as good as made."

CHARITY GETS $12,000

WEST ORANGE, N. J.—(INS)—Charity today benefited $12,000 from the exhibition golf match in which Billy Burke, open champion, and George S. Minn, businessman-golfer, defeated Bobby Jones and Frances George Oulmet, king of the Amateurs, 8 and 7.

At St. Louis—Midget Mike O'Dowd, Columbus featherweight, won decision over Mickey Genaro, Chicago, (10).

At Chicago—Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, won decision over Tuffy Griffiths, Chicago, (10).

Larry Johnson, Chicago negro, won decision over Lou Soczo, Buffalo heavyweight, (8).

Dave Miler, Milwaukee lightweight, scored technical knockout over Tiger Thomas, West Indies, (2).

John Schwake, Chicago heavyweight, won decision over Salvatore Rugirrello, New York, (6).

At St. Louis—Midget Mike O'Dowd, Columbus featherweight, won decision over Mickey Genaro, Chicago, (10).

THE TRUTH ABOUT TAXES

THE statement in our last advertisement that the cost of government in Iowa has increased approximately 240% in the last twenty years should cause every taxpayer to inquire the reason why.

In our opinion, a comparison of the tax levy of most Iowa municipalities for 1920 with the tax levy for 1930 will answer the question, for it will show that the tax levy of 1930 included not only increases in practically all of the items shown on the 1920 levy, but also many items of taxation that were unknown at that time. These items will no doubt include such items as a tax for a swimming pool, a memorial hall, a bank, an air field, more and larger parks, a tourist camp or some other project, and sometimes three or four, which during the "lazz age" were loaded onto the taxpayers and must now be paid for and maintained by them.

It is apparent, therefore, that it is these luxuries and not the necessities of government that are to blame for a considerable part of the ever increasing tax burden.

When these facts are known, the taxpayers will understand why we say that no "tax adjustment" such as has been proposed by some of our leading politicians can relieve the condition which has resulted from this unnecessary and extravagant expenditure of public money, and that the only real remedy is "tax reduction." A reduction in taxes can and must be made—not by reducing the amount expended for the necessities of government, but by eliminating the luxuries of government. This cannot be done so long as the State, the counties and the municipalities continue to furnish the people with luxuries—most of which are not a proper governmental function and should not be built, operated or maintained at public expense.

Lasting and worthwhile tax reductions will be possible only when the people stop spending the public money extravagantly.

If the taxpayers will examine the tax records of their respective communities, we believe they will find ample proof of our statement that it is not the necessities of government, but the luxuries of government that are responsible for a considerable part of the increase in taxation during the last twenty years.

FROZEN 'DEAD' MAN TELLS OF OLD EXPERIENCE

WHEATON, Ill. — (INS) — The late Sir Reginald Rankin, credited with having been "frozen into unconsciousness and recovered," has at least one equal in this world, Olen Olson, a merchant-tailor here.

Sir Reginald who died Sept. 10 at Bryngwran, England, only recovered from one "death" while the Wheaton man has two to his credit.

Olson's second experience with death was during the winter of 1880 when he was 15. At that time he started out with a party from his farm home in Wernand province, Sweden, to Christiania, Norway, to sell some farm products.

The temperature dropped to 30 degrees below zero, and the members of the party were forced to walk in order to keep from freezing to death, according to Olson.

In recalling this "death" Olson said that the last he remembered was that he clung to the sled thinking it an awful dream, but believing that he would wake up beside a warm fire.

The next morning he regained consciousness beside a warm fire. His companions were cutting his frozen clothing from his body and he was stiff as a board.

Olson recalls how his companions rubbed him with snow and how his body ached every time he was touched.

Olson said he recovered without losing a finger or toe two months after his "death."

The first "death" was three years before he was pulled from a lake and revived by artificial respiration.

IOWA GOVERNOR PASSES THROUGH CEDAR COUNTY

Turner Does Not Stop
On Way Through
Tipton

Broadcasting company was put in readiness for his talk. The microphone was set up on the steps and everything was in readiness for the speech until shortly before 5 p. m. when word was received from Des Moines that Governor Turner was on his way there. He had passed through Davenport early in the afternoon and the report received at Tipton was to the effect that he would leave the train at West Liberty and come to Tipton by automobile.

Residents of Tipton expected Wednesday to see streets patrolled by members of the national guard now stationed at the Cedar county fairgrounds, but such was not the case. With the exception of a few men on leave and a few officers, the only men in uniform in the city came into Tipton on army trucks which left again after being loaded with supplies for the camp.

Pseudo Law Declared
When it was announced that Cedar county would be placed under martial law, the citizens obtained the impression that gatherings would be prohibited. Wednesday, when "pseudo martial law" was declared at noon, and later when no interference by guardsmen was made as several hundred farmers congregated at the Farmer's Union station, the citizens began to wonder just what was what and why.

It was later explained that "pseudo martial law" meant merely that troops would assist civil authorities in the carrying out of their duty. According to a proclamation issued by Gov. Turner the Adjutant General, Brig. Gen. Winfred H. Bailey, will "protect any and all property, officers, and men from unlawful interference and will arrest all persons engaging in acts of violence, intimidation and interference with the enforcement of the laws. He will prevent the assembling and loitering of persons when in his judgment the same is necessary."

Findley Has Escort
Crowds which gathered yesterday, both at the oil station and the court house, were meted in no way by the guardsmen. The only indication of military authority was when Brig. Gen. Park A. Findley, in command of the troops in Cedar county, read the governor's proclamation from the court house steps. At that time a military escort of about 50 guardsmen stood in parade formation in front of the building.

The proclamation read by the general was transmitted by remote control to radio station WOC from where it was broadcast. At noon Wednesday other broadcasts were made from the county auditor's office in the court house. Talks were made by C. L. McKinnon of near New London who explained why the farmers were opposing the bovine T. B. tests; C. E. Miller, secretary of the Cedar county fair association; J. W. Lenker, president of the Cedar county Farmers' Protective association and Morgan Sexton, radio announcer.

City Is Quite
The broadcasting was about the only activity of the day. There was on the whole, but little excitement in Tipton Wednesday and had it not been for the unusually large number of people in town little difference could be told between Tipton under martial law and ordinary times.

Word was rumored about that the actual testing of cattle will start today. Members of General Findley's staff, the county surveyor or county auditor have been busy since the arrival of the troops preparing maps showing the road system of the county.

No information as to the method to be followed to make the tests was available from either Dr. Peter Malcolm, chief state veterinarian or General Findley. Dr. Malcolm has announced, however, that 50 veterinarians would be mobilized to make the tests.

Many Farmers Expected
It is expected that thousands of farmers from not only Cedar county but surrounding ones as well, will be in Tipton today. Although at a mass meeting Tuesday evening the farmers decided not to give up the fight, they have not indicated what steps, if any, will be taken to prevent the application of the tuberculin injections.

According to announcement made at the court house Wednesday, the intelligence division of the national guard troops stationed at Tipton have reported to General Findley that some farmers have been driving their cattle out of the county. Quarantines will probably be placed on a number of the herds to prevent the cattle from being driven out of the county.

Cedar Farm Group Hears Program by Township Schools

Seventy-five were present when pupils of the three schools in Cedar township, presented the program at the monthly meeting of the Farmers Bureau Wednesday night at the Cranston school.

Readings, singing and a health play were among the numbers offered by the pupils, and community singing was in charge of Mrs. Leota Brookhart, township chairman of women's work. Talks were given by Carl Rylander, county agent, and Miss Elizabeth Armstrong, home demonstration agent.

Aborted Calf One Result of T. B. Test

TIPTON, Ia. — (Special) — Demonstrating one result of the tuberculin test for bovine tuberculosis, Ed Scarpio, who lives about eight miles south of Tipton on highway No. 38, brought an aborted calf to the Farmers' Union oil station Wednesday. The animal, which is deformed and unable to stand, was viewed by several hundred farmers who gathered at the station.

After it had lain in plain view of the farmers for most of the day, it was carried to the court house and shown to all the county officials.

Mr. Scarpio said that his cattle had been tested twice. This year from a herd of 26 head of heifers and cows, he lost all but 14 calves. The year before, when the herd was twice so large, he lost all but three.

Of the calves which lived all were vaccinated and all of them died of blood poison, he told the farmers. The calf which was brought to Tipton Wednesday had been born that same morning. Due to its helplessness, the animal had been attacked by hogs and had not Mr. Scarpio been there at the time would undoubtedly have been killed.

A placard bearing the inscription, "One result of the T. B. test" was carried with the calf on its tour of the court house. Mr. Scarpio reported that the mother of the calf was a fine, healthy looking cow. How many months previous to its time the calf had been born could not be ascertained definitely by the owner.

Mr. Scarpio says he is not now in favor of the tuberculin test.

There was considerable waste in handling before the rains came.

Pastures, meadows and late truck crops were greatly benefited by the rains. Commercial tomatoes in season have matured with a rush and factories are running at capacity.

Twenty sophomore stars are being given serious consideration by Coach Carl Snively of Bucknell this fall.

DES MOINES.—(INS)—A serious and acute need of water by livestock was provided by the rainfall of the past week, according to the bulletin released today by Charles D. Reed, director of the U. S. department of agriculture weather bureau.

Last week's average rainfall for Iowa was 3.1 inches. The greatest since the week ending Sept. 7, 1926, the announcement said. Rain was reported as excessive in the northern part of the state. The rains followed excessive temperatures in all parts of the state except in the southeastern counties.

Corn is practically all safe from the frost, the report stated. In the south portion, however, it is believed to have dried too rapidly for best results.

Heat Record Breaking
Mr. Reed's complete summary follows:

Record breaking heat for so late in the season with afternoon temperatures in the 90's, prevailed over most of the state the first half of the week, followed by heavy rains in all but the extreme southeast counties and much lower temperatures. In much of the northern half of the state the rains were excessive. At Fort Dodge, the weekly rainfall was 7.77 inches, which is about the normal for the two months of August and September, and the larger part of this fell in a few hours. The weekly average for the state, 3.1 inches, is the greatest weekly average since the week ending September 7, 1926.

Rivers and streams are beginning to respond generally as they have not done for months, and hollows and depressions are filled with water, which in many cases has relieved a serious and acute need of livestock. For example, farmers in the vicinity of Alta, Buena Vista county, were hauling about 60 tanks of water per day from the town.

Soil Moisture Restored
Surface soil moisture has been restored to normal in most of the state, though the subsoil continues dry to great depths, for the rains fell so rapidly that much ran off. Plowing and preparations for fall seeding are going forward rapidly.

Farmers were busy during recent hot days destroying volunteer wheat which might harbor Hessian flies. At no place in the state was it safe to seed winter wheat up to this date because of the danger from fly infestation, yet some seeding was done during the past week, and those who disregarded the fly-free date will probably pay the penalty as they did last year with thousands of acres abandoned because of fly damage the following May and June.

Corn is practically all safe from frost. In the southern counties it is believed to have dried too rapidly the past week for best results. Reports just received from 68 well distributed farms show that the main cornfields on these farms averaged safe from frost on September 11, which is the earliest since 1921. Considerable seed corn has been saved. A little fodder cutting is being done, but the leaves were so dry and brittle that there is suggested as a means by which the governor could possibly avoid some of the criticism which has resulted from the placing of the troops in Tipton.

Text of Message
The message from Mr. Baker to the governor reads as follows: "Honorable Dan Turner, Governor, Des Moines, Ia.

"I implore you, on behalf of thousands of farmers and business people to withdraw all troops from Cedar county for the following reasons:

"First—A fair law is not resisted. Hundreds of thousands have resisted the tuberculosis testing law in the United States, including Senator Glass, on the grounds that said law is the result of combined efforts of the veterinarians, packers and Wall Street interests, which proves it unfair.

"Second—Government officials and laboratory experts admit it is only good enough for general purposes, and that it is not infallible.

"Third—Why enforce such an unfair law with state troops, thus driving the farmer to more poverty in this depression, with twenty-five cent wheat.

"Fourth—You are over fifty years old and have drunk milk since childhood from all kinds of cows. Your father and mother did likewise, so in the name of common sense why be controlled or dominated by those fallacies.

"At least withdraw troops and stop all state testing until after the next session of the legislature, as Nebraska has done. This foolishness costs the tax-payers hundreds of thousands of dollars weekly, and benefits only the packers and doctors. Read page sixteen of TNT October magazine which I am mailing you today.

"About graft of T. B. testing. Farmers believe your action was caused by misrepresentations regarding the Lenker farm affair. State men were not severely beaten. This was merely the propaganda of organized groups. Iowa farmers demand justice. They stand pat in every county, meaning a repetition of this great troop expense to every county. It's a shame, crime and stain upon Iowa. In the interest of pure blood streams in humans and beasts, we will go down in history among the ignorant superstitions of the dark ages.

"NORMAN BAKER."
OVER 12,000 AT BOSTON U. BOSTON.—(INS)—Boston University has thrown open its doors to from twelve to fourteen thousand students for the sixty-third university year. Renovated and redecorated classrooms and buildings were a surprise greeting to the thousands of students. Several new dormitory and buildings were a surprise college buildings.

Conservative leaders, drawing assurance from the favorable reaction of the stock exchange to the new monetary situation, expressed the belief that there was nothing in the country's financial or economic situation to delay an election, and began to lay plans to dissolve parliament as soon as pending economy legislation has been enacted.

Heretofore an election had been opposed in financial circles on the ground that it would prove too disturbing to a nation already beset by disturbing economic ills, but the steady and optimistic manner with which the country met the suspension of the gold standard has caused a change in this view.

It was estimated today that the national government would be able to complete the balancing of the budget by the end of the first week in October, after which the way would be clear to proceed with election plans.

The present program of conservative leaders does not contemplate an appeal to the country for support as a conservative party, but only as a part of the national government, headed by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald.

Endorsement will not only be asked of work of the emergency government in dealing with national economic problems, but the voters will be asked to send to the House of Commons men pledged to support a protective tariff policy.

Should Prime Minister MacDonald be returned to the head of the cabinet following the election, there is a growing belief that he will retire after a few months, possibly abandoning active politics to become British Ambassador to the United States.

Applications of four Muscatine county residents for naturalization papers, will be heard at a hearing before Judge C. L. Ely in district court at 9 a. m. Friday.

The applicants are: Anton Pick, Nichols, Ia., native of Holland; Emil Lick, 305 Clinton street, native of Russia-Poland; Peter Franz Sachs, 905 Sycamore street, native of Germany; William P. Solonen, 615 East Fourth street, native of Russia.

Crowd That Gov. Turner Disappointed

Above is pictured a crowd of farmers and city residents as they waited in front of the court house steps at Tipton Wednesday when word was received that Governor Dan Turner was on his way to the scene of the cattle testing "war."

Just after this picture was taken it was announced that the governor had gone to Des Moines instead of going to Tipton. At Davenport when interviewed by reporters he is quoted as saying, "I will not go to Tipton. The state has plenty of officers there to run the show."

LEGION PLANS TO VOTE TODAY ON DRY ISSUE

Veterans Will Demand
Referendum by the Various States

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

DETROIT.—(INS)—The American Legion today will denounce the Eighteenth amendment, calling for its resubmission by Congress to the states for a popular referendum, reject the cash bonus plan unless a miracle occurs, and then elect Henry L. Stevens, Jr., youthful North Carolina attorney, as its new national commander on the first ballot.

This ambitious program confronted the Legion convention after a hectic series of all-night conferences, caucuses and confabs. The outlook, as revealed by an International News Service survey, was:

Will Favor Referendum
Prohibition—Overwhelming approval of the resolution, declaring the Eighteenth amendment has "created a condition endangering respect for law and the security of American institutions," and putting the great veterans organization on record as favoring "submission by congress of the repeal or modification of the present prohibition laws to the several states, with a request that each state submit the question to the voters thereof."

Cash Payment of Bonus—Defeat of cash demand by a majority of approximately 150 votes, unless the convention is stamped by frenzied oratory into rebuking President Hoover. An early morning post by International News Service showed an approximate vote of 777 to 635 against the cash demand. Both sides were claiming victory.

Will Elect Commander
National Commander—Election of Henry L. Stevens, of North Carolina, on the first ballot assured, even though his opposition staged the bitterest fight in all the history of the Legion.

The action of the Legion in assailing the Eighteenth amendment will be precedent shattering, since it will throw the Legion—even though but half-heartedly—into the fight to modify prohibition.

The bonus issue presented a situation where convention leaders are confident the demand for immediate cash payments would be defeated but the proponents claimed victory and were giving the supports of President Hoover's attitude many hours of worry.

Political Battle Looms
Two veteran politicians—Rep. Wright Patterson, a Texas Democrat, and Raymond Field, Oklahoma publisher who directed President Hoover's publicity campaign in that state in 1928—threatened to upset the "apple-cart." They started out Monday to put over the cash bonus and they have sent shivers down the spines of Mr. Hoover's followers. They can't possibly win if an International News Service poll is correct, but they have put up one of the finest political battles recorded in years.

The administration's spokesmen here—Theodore Roosevelt, governor of Porto Rico; Hanford MacNider, minister to Canada; and Frank T. Hines, veterans administrator—fought with their backs to the wall faced the difficult task of securing an anti-cash expression from the convention.

As for the commander's race, it was all over but the balloting and the shouting. Hall, Henry L. Stevens, of North Carolina!

Vaccination Dangers Known To U. S. Public Health Body

When a careful analysis is made of vaccination one cannot remain indifferent to this practice but must become a bitter opponent to this dangerous delusion. It is to be hoped that the references cited will be looked up and lead to further study so that a careful analysis may be made of all phases of the subject. It is to be hoped also that this series of articles will be the means of enlightening those who have any doubts in regard to the false claims which have been used in foisting this medical fraud upon the public with its frequent serious consequences.

In an Editorial in the C. S. Monitor the fact that the practice has been tolerated by so many people is attributed to their indifference concerning this vitally important question. The Editor says:

"Twenty persons accept vaccination in much the same way that they accept those other features of their education and environment to which they have not given much thought. Recently, however, there has been a growing opposition to vaccination of such a nature that the fact is becoming increasingly realized that there is a well-defined line of reasoning against it which demands recognition."

"This applies particularly to the efforts which have been made of late years to enforce the practice upon all persons, and particularly children, by law. Say the opponents of this method of alleged prophylaxis, 'Vaccinate if you will, and all you will get is a desire to undergo this treatment; but leave those who do not desire it to themselves.' That the logic of the stand taken by such opponents of compulsory vaccination is recognized in some medical circles may be seen by statements made occasionally in authoritative medical journals. Thus even as late as 1914 American Medicine said in its editorial:

"The growing opposition to vaccination is a matter of grave concern. This new movement . . . is not the illogical and absurd anti-vaccinationist crusade, but is the conviction on the part of very intelligent men, that it is useless to protect against an infection which they may never encounter."

The real issue the Monitor Editor says "is that of compelling unwilling individuals to undergo any kind of medical treatment to which they strongly object. Even the most ardent proponents of vaccination are forced to acknowledge that some cases which have been subjected to this method suffer untoward after-effects."

"One does not expect such advocates of the practice to recognize all the bad results which opponents trace to it; however, even that, those urging vaccination will find this question difficult to answer: What right have they to enforce upon unwilling persons any method which has been proved even rarely, to be capable of producing unfortunate results, sometimes fatal?"

"Many statistics could be quoted to indicate both the alleged benefits of vaccination and the fact that these benefits can be traced to other factors such as sanitation operating at the same time—so that the benefits may be said to have resulted not so much as result of vaccination but in spite of it. These, however, it will be acknowledged by both parties to the question, are largely a matter of opinion. The fact that outstands all is that an increasing number of intelligent persons feel deep-rooted objection to submitting either themselves or those dependent upon them to this system of alleged medical prophylaxis. Why, then, shall they not be allowed their freedom in this direction, as they are in religion and other departments of treatment for disease? The answer to this question refuses to be sidetracked."

In view of the discovery by Dr. Charles A. R. Campbell, formerly health official at San Antonio, Texas, that smallpox is contracted only by means of the bedbug in the same manner that yellow fever is conveyed by the mosquito, which was explained in the last article, vaccination is worse than useless, and it is the duty of the U. S. Public Health Service to issue a warning to Boards of Health to note carefully cases of infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) as possibly having been caused by vaccination.

In the Journal of the Medical Society of New Jersey, Director G. W. McCoy, U. S. Public Health Service, states: "Any central nervous system involvement occurring within 30 days subsequent to vaccination is worthy of special study. Cases reported as poliomyelitis, infantile paralysis, encephalitis, lethargia and meningitis, might well be investigated as to their vaccination histories, in order that cases possibly of the post-vaccinal type may not be overlooked."

The Citizens Medical Reference Bureau of New York City took up this question with the health officials of New York and New Jersey and recommended a suspension of the vaccination requirements as a means of controlling the recent outbreak of poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis.

In its Bulletin of August 15, 1931, the Citizens Medical Reference Bureau also states: "If boards of health were less concerned about promoting controversial forms of medical treatment, and confined their activities to sound principles of public health there would be no occasion for these periodic campaigns of terrorism and the people would be healthier and happy."

The ever skeptical reporter thought he was being kidded for when he looked out at the sky from his office he saw nothing but dull gray clouds and even heard the thunder punctuating the storm.

"And I'm not seeing things either," the informant seriously continued. "If you don't believe me just call the weather man and ask him about the season's first snow storm."

Norman B. Conger, the meteorologist, was called to verify the freak storm, but instead explained how a trick of light rays had caused the belief.

"There weren't any snowflakes," he said. "I don't have snow with this temperature at 65. What the woman saw was the light shining on the raindrops making them appear like snowflakes."

The Carnegie Foundation's attempt to purchase our football turns out to be only a slow leak which has been patched up and the pigskin is inflated and ready for another bouncing.

Missing Ocean Flyer Saved After 148 Hours

CHRISTIAN JOHANSEN

Picked up after floating 148 hours on the wave-buffed wreckage of their Lisbon to New York plane, three flyers are safe aboard the small Norwegian motorship Belmoira bound for Halifax, N. S.

First came a terse message from the Belmoira saying the wreckage of a plane had been sighted off Cape Race and about eighty miles southeast of Cape Race, a treacherous section of the Newfoundland coast. Later advice told of the finding of Willy Rody and Christian Johanssen, the German flyers and their Portuguese companion, Fernando Costa Vieira.

They had completed about 2,600 miles of their 3,700 mile trans-Atlantic journey. But the plane had no radio and as they approached the Atlantic seaboard overcast skies and electrical storms confronted them.

STOCKTON

STOCKTON, Ia. — (Special)—The Stockton Farmers Union was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Schlapohl at the regular meeting.

Following the business session five tables of 500 were surrounded. Honors went to Mrs. Ella Broders, Mrs. Emma Broders, Harvey Paulsen and Louis Duge.

Those from this union who attended the farmers union convention in Des Moines last week were: William Schlapohl and R. F. Broders, delegates and Clarence Broders, Albert Siebek, William Wulf, John Nielsen, Harvey Paulsen, Louis Duge, Emil Hering, Emil Hering, Emil Krebs, and Walter Krebs.

Mrs. Earnest Broders, Mrs. F. H. French and Mrs. Richard Von Maur of Davenport and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ferris of West Liberty were guests of Mr. G. F. Broders.

Miss Minnie Becker is visiting this week at the home of her nephew, George Omsby and family at Sunbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Hilbert and son, Amos, and daughter, Alta, spent Saturday visiting with relatives and friends in Davenport.

The remains of Henry Becker, who died 21 years ago, and was buried in the Durant cemetery have been removed and taken to a Des Moines cemetery and buried beside his wife who died last May.

It was removed by a Des Moines undertaker.

Mr. Becker is a brother of Mrs. D. B. Omsby and Miss Minnie Becker and was born and reared in Stockton. He lived here a number of years after his marriage to Miss Lena Snagger of Durant, but was a resident of Davenport at the time of his death.

His family, a widow and six children then moved to Durant and later to Des Moines, where the children still reside.

MUSCATINE high school's 1931 football edition of the Little Muskies will jar off the lid of its Little Six gridiron season with the strong Mt. Pleasant eleven at Jefferson field Friday night and according to present indications it will be a battle well worth watching. The Mt. Pleasant Panthers displayed quite a bit of last year's power last week in administering a 27 to 0 trouncing to the Winfield team. The Little Muskies lost their first start to Tipton, 2 to 0, but came along fast in drills this week and are figured to make the invaders hustle for the decision.

UNDERDOGS they may be when they trot onto the field Friday night but the Little Muskies are going to surprise lots of their would-be critics by their all around improvement in form during the last week. The offense is clicking the way it should and the defense looks good enough to stop most any high school team dead in its tracks.

SEEKING revenge for last season's 46 to 0 wallowing at the hands of a powerful Mt. Pleasant team the Little Muskies will send their full strength against Friday night's visitors but the following probably will bear the brunt of the attack: Hanson, Lutz, Barko and E. Lee, ends; Butts, Fallschek and Slack, tackles; Worst, Capt. Utley and Moss, guards; Weber and M. Lee, centers; Mills, Kammerer, McGuire, Nugent, Willon, Minder and Guessegren, backs.

KINNAN has been drilling his proteges all week in several new plays and expresses confidence they will click in great style against the invaders even though their defense is admittedly strong as indicated in last week's game with Winfield. "The boys will not look like the same team that could not score on Tipton last week," the local coach declares, "as they are blocking better, charging like veterans and coming along fast."

INSPIRED to do or die for their coach and pal, Bobby Kinnan, the Little Muskies are going to shoot the works Friday night in a determined effort to make the Mt. Pleasant team their first Little Six victim. Ottumwa, Washington, West Liberty, Fairfield, Dewitt, Burlington and Columbus Junction then will be met in succession for the toughest schedule ever attempted by a Muscatine high school football team.

ELECTRIFYING a good sized bunch of onlookers at Jefferson field Wednesday night with their efficient off tackle drives, accurate passing, center bucking through the line, cross bucking and highly effective blocking the all around improved form of the Little Muskies has led many to believe Kinnan's proteges have slightly better than an even chance to beat Mt. Pleasant and thus chalk up their first victory of the season.

SURPRISE indeed it will be if there are not several thousand loyal fans on hand Friday night to give Kinnan and his Little Muskies their moral support. Smaller schools of the country have found a real Santa Claus in night football and if attendances at nocturnal games continue this season there is every reason to believe that the grid game under the arcs will continue indefinitely.
